Social Economy and Sustainability Research Network

Partenariat sur l'économie sociale et la durabilité

Bridging, Bonding, and Building / Renforcement des liens et des capacités

Introduction

Research outputs from research projects, especially those that are not commercially published (often referred to as grey literature), may often not be made accessible after a research project is completed.

Social Economy Space (SE space) is an online repository of resources that attempts to address this issue by providing free access to research and resources related to the Social Economy, with a focus on Atlantic Canada.

This site collects digital documents or links directly to such materials. Here you will find a full document and not just a reference to it. If you are interested in a reference and resource guide on Social Economy, click here.

The purpose of the Social Economy Space is to promote the widest possible dissemination by collecting and preserving intellectual output and key reports written by both academics and practitioners, and ensuring that it has high visibility and accessibility. You can navigate the website by using the browse and search menus found to your right.

The SE-Space site is focused on the works, publications and research by persons involved in researching and writing about matters pertaining to the Social Economy. The main focus is on work authored by or relevant to Atlantic Canadians, though we will gradually expand our coverage of Canadian and international works. We also include links to the other Canadian Social Economy Research Partnerships.

Social Economy & Sustainability Research Network (SESARN)

A group of researchers from academic institutions, community organizations and various levels of government, who have come together to explore the Social Economy in Atlantic Canada.

Atlantic Network is one of six such regional research networks across Canada.

University researchers partner with community economic development organizations, non-profits, service sector organizations and co-operatives of a local, regional and national scope.

Social Economy & Sustainability Research Network (SESARN)

Employing, mentoring, and involving students in social economy research a top priority of the network.

Two of the member institutions' libraries (Mount Saint Vincent University and Université de Moncton), in consultation with the SESARN directors developed a repository for the project.

Conclusion

SE space acts a repository to archive the work done as part of SESRN and provide preservation and access to the research produced past the end of the project

Institutional, and subject-based repositories are important channels for scholarly communications

Archiving academic and grey literature is an important effort that benefits a variety of audiences, not just universities.
